[英文提要]

David's image has emerged in three types. David's historical image constitutes the basis on which all types of his image have been formed up. David's literary image is in the intermediary position for it is both the sublimation of David's historical image and the basis of David's spiritual image. Josephus' Antiquities of the Jews, the two books of Samuel and Psalms are respectively the bibliographical basis of the image in three types. David's image is described both in prosaic biography and in versified biography since different genres are used, the former laying stress on the life details, and the latter laying stress on mental spirituality. It is a better way to research into Psalms with Shijing as the reference system in order that David's image may be well grasped.
