

基督教与儒家的性别角色比较研究^①

Comparative Research on Gender Roles between Christianity and Confucianism

方 敏

Fang Min

Abstract: This essay attempts to reveal objectively the similarities and differences of gender roles in Christian and Confucius classics, making an analysis from a sociological perspective. It is expected that through these similarities and differences, we can explore and then discover the essential ideas on gender roles in these two traditional cultures, which can better help us understand the gender roles, reflect and reexamine the current theories and practices. The author believes that such reflection will be helpful and inspiring to the establishment of a harmonious order between the genders.

Keywords: gender roles, Confucianism, Christianity

^① 本文由天津市哲学社会科学研究课题资助(TJSR 06-1-006);本文曾作为第四届宗教社会科学国际研讨会的会议论文(2007.7.13-15,上海)。(This essay is a part of the significant research project (No 05JZD00030) funded by Ministry of Education of China. It was presented at "The 4th International Symposium on the Social Scientific Studies of Religion", July, 13-15, 2007, Shanghai University, China.)